DirecTV For the Sea

Have boat, will travel. Now add the new TracVision M3 satellite TV system and you can travel in style. KVH Industries, Inc. has announced the M3 as the world's smallest marine satellite TV system, perfect for boats as small as 25 feet. Maybe you thought your vessel was just too tiny to be kicking up your feet and watching the tube? KVH says no to you naysayers. The product includes the TracVision M3 antenna, an integrated 12-volt marine receiver for DIRECTV service and easy installation, and an RF remote control for convenient operation. And the 14.5-inch antenna is just as good as the other 18-inch jobbies on the larger systems. Install this baby and you'll get 300 channels of DirecTV programming and 50 channels of XM radio if you're within 200 miles of the shore. As mentioned, it uses an RF signal (rather than the IR on home systems) so you can change channels even when the receiver is under lock and key.
